RESIDENTIAL CRUISE LINE HOSTS MILLION DOLLAR CELEBRITY EVENT
Guests Can Experience Life Onboard the Magellan...On Land

February 9, 2007 – Phoenix, AZ – Former Heavyweight Champion Evander Holyfield, Baseball Legend Johnny Bench, Football Hall of Famer Tony Dorsett, Astronaut Buzz Aldrin, Comedian Martin Short, golfers Hank Haney and Glen Day and master poker player Phil Gordon are just a few of the celebrities lined-up to participate in the Residential Cruise Line Celebrity Event to be held at the Phoenician Resort and Mastro's Ocean Club on Saturday, February 17, 2007. The event kicks off at the Phoenician at 8:00 a.m. with a celebrity filled golf tournament followed in the evening by a reception and dinner at Mastro's Ocean Club. Comedian Martin Short will kick-off the entertainment followed by the Phil Gordon Celebrity Poker Tournament featuring the best poker players in the world including Gus Hanson and Annie Duke. To participate in any of the events, call 480-497-8833 x 704 for more information or visit www.ResidentialCruiseLine.com.

Residential Cruise Line is the parent of company of the world's most exclusive private residential cruise ship, the Magellan.

“By hosting this event, I wanted to give attendees a chance to experience what life would be like onboard the Magellan,” said Randy Jackson, president and CEO of Residential Cruise Line. “Although the ship will be sailing in 2010, on Feb. 17 our guests can get a sense of how unique owning a home onboard the Magellan will be—surrounded by world-class entertainment, luxurious amenities and, most importantly, unheralded fun.”

The Magellan, valued at $750,000,000 boasts such features as two Bell 429 helicopters to transport owners on and off the ship, a 24-hour concierge staff, an observatory with a full-time Russian astronomer, six fine dining restaurants and a 450-seat broadcast satellite capable theatre to name just a few. With 300 ports of call, the Magellan will circumnavigate the globe every two years allowing each owner to call the world home.
